1st International Conference on Science

Makassar, November 19th-20th, 2014

Introduction

For the development of a scientific network amongst Indonesian scientists and international scientists as science users in particular in field of basic and applied science, we propose an international science conference 2014. The proposed International science conference will allow participants to communicate and share better ways to enhance science towards globalisation in developing country.

Makassar city, the capital of South Sulawesi province known as one of the biggest cities in Indonesia and also having Hasanuddin University, the biggest university in eastern Indonesia, has plenty of natural resources and human resources. Having a strategic position at the center point of Indonesia, Makassar has been developing very rapidly, and has been contributing to the regional, national and even international economic development. Given this science can play important roles and therefore is needed to support rapid development in various sectors. With regard to this, Faculty of Mathematics and Natural Sciences Hasanuddin University would like to contribute to enhance basic and applied sciences through the proposed international conference through which scientists and science users and other stakeholders would have opportunity to share and communicate current research activities in math, biology, chemistry, physics, statistics, computer sciences and other relevant topics.

Call for Paper

Theme

“Science Enhancement for Developing Countries”

Sub theme

1. Enhancement Science towards globalization
2. Application of basic and applied sciences to support sustainability of natural resources
3. Development of Science Education

Objectives

1. To provide venues for scientists and science user to discuss science enhancement towards globalisation.
2. To communicate experiences and scientific information and update data on the current researchers activities in sciences biology, chemistry, physics, math, statistics, computer and educational sciences.
3. To establish networks and research collaboration amongst researchers and stakeholders in the field of basic and applied science.

Topics

- Biology (Marine, Microbiology, Molecular, etc.)
- Mathematics (Differential Equation, Graph, etc.)
- Statistics
- Computer Science
- Physics (Physics & Geophysics)
- Chemistry (Carbon, Nanotechnology, Biochemistry, Natural Product)
- Environmental Science.

Submission

The paper’s format:

- Maximum of six (6) pages.
- One column article in A4 paper.
- 12 pt Times New Roman and one space.

The paper must consist of:

1. Title
2. Abstract, maximum of 200 words in one column
3. Introduction
4. Material and Method
5. Result & Discussion
6. Conclusion
7. Bibliography

Poster format: A1

All presented papers in ICOS-1 2014 will be published in Proceeding.
