UNHAS had a meeting with AIC Director Dr. Eugene Sabastian and his team at Monash University's AIC office on December 12, 2022. They discussed the establishment of PAIR LAB as a research consortium that will be led by UNHAS in collaboration with Monash University.

On December 13, 2022, the team had a meeting with Monash University's Vice Chancellor for Partnerships,

Prof. Rebekah Brown, at the Monash University, Clayton Campus. During the meeting, they discussed the extension of the MOU, which will end next year, and several ongoing projects, such as RISE. They also talked about the results of innovations that have been carried out by UNHAS. Furthermore, UNHAS submitted a request for an adjunct professor and a visiting researcher to collaborate with UNHAS. The UNHAS team managed to meet both the Vice Chancellor for Partnership and the Pro Vice Chancellor for Education. In this meeting, they discussed the Colombo Plan, where Monash students can do exchange or mobility at UNHAS, the possibility of a double degree or split master's, and also English language development program for staff and students.

The next university in Victoria visited by the team was the University of Melbourne

(UniMelb) on December 13, 2022. The UNHAS team met with the Vice Chancellor for Partnership in Asia and Dr. Sherah Kurnia as a representative of the UniMelb. During the meeting, the UNHAS team discussed the MOU with UniMelb. Besides them, there were also several research colleagues from UniMelb attending the meeting. In this collaboration, it is expected that good programs can be developed, for example in the fields of research and student exchange. Furthermore, a double degree program in public policy and sociology can also be developed. As a result of this meeting, the MOU will be followed up in January 2023.
